Allen Chang, PhD
Program Director, Data Science
INSIGHT, New York
allen@insightdatascience.com

Allen Chang has a PhD in Cognitive Neuroscience from Boston University, where he studied learning and memory in humans. He worked as a data science intern in digital advertising, where he built machine learning models to determine user conversions on digital display ads. In 2019, he went through the Insight Data Science fellowship and became a program director shortly after. Now he has helped over 70 people bridge the gap in transitioning from academia to data science.